CONCORD, N. C.

and . . .

DEDICATED to our beloved parents, to whom we are grateful because, among the many ways in which they have shown their interest and devotion, they have seen the need for our education and have sent us through twelve years of school, whether it meant hardships or not. For these full, happy years, which are the basis of our future, we say "thank you" to our parents.

In our many years at Winecoff High School, we have worked together as a group. Now before we go our individual ways to find our places in life, we publish this annual, to preserve more vividly our everlasting love for Winecoff. May it help us relive in memories the days we have known together.

Class Prophecy

One sunny afternoon in the year 1959, I decided to get away from the busy streets and take a stroll in the park. After walking for some time I sat down under a big tree and found myself slowly going to sleep. Suddenly a blinding ray of light shone before me and when I was completely awake I found that a little fairy was standing before me. We talked for some time and she informed me that a big reunion ball was being given for my classmates and asked me if I would be interested in going. Well, immediately I accepted her invitation, because I had not seen any of my classmates in years, since I was constantly on the go with my singing contract.

So like a jet-propelled rocket we were off and in a flash we came before a beautiful castle. As we entered, the host, who was none other than Kenneth Coley, greeted us. He is a successful lawyer in the biggest firm in Chicago now. I always knew that he'd make it. As I roamed around the room I hardly knew some of my friends, but I recognized Billie Rogers the moment I saw her. She explained to me her new position. It is designing the window displays in Chicago's leading department store. As she and I were chatting someone tapped me on the shoulder and I turned to see Peggy Carpenter, Madge Patterson and Aerogene Hampton. Peggy told me she was a secretary for Madge, who is head nurse in a Chicago hospital. Aerogene is singing in a big night club with Albert Fisher's band, which incidentally is world-famous and, girls, guess who is his favorite drummer, Franklin Dorton. Oh! Frankie.

Well! Well! if it isn't the boy voted most handsome of our Senior Class, Harold Isenhour. He hasn't changed a bit and neither has Vera Henderson who naturally was along with him. They have a cute little cottage in Chicago. Just then someone called, "Dinner's ready"; I looked to see who the boy was with the familiar voice and it was George Sifford, the head chef at the Waldorf-Astoria. Nearly being trampled by someone who was hurrying to dinner, I turned to see Nancy Misenheimer. She is a professional basketball star now. And along with her were Lewis Rodgers and Melvin Anderson. I call them the "Big Three." Lewis and Melvin are playing professional football for the Charlotte "Clippers."

As we all sat down at the table, I looked to see who was sitting beside me. It was Doris Hunsucker and Marjorie Eagle. As you know Doris is happily married and Marjorie is doing secretarial work for Mr. Cannon.

After our delicious dinner, we went into the ballroom for some entertainment. Edith Furr and Jean Petty came across the floor to acquaint us with the latest Paris clothes. Their designer is the popular Betty Stegall. Next we were to be entertained by the beautiful voice of Jesse Love, a professional singer. While he was singing, I turned to speak to Ruth Lackey. Ruth is secretary for Mason Brawley, who is the owner of the Chicago Chemical Company. She told me that Mary Alda Hileman was doing secretarial work for him.

And you wouldn't believe it, but Beaufort Mincey and Bill Kiser are policemen in Detroit. William Robinette was unable to attend the ball because he was working on a very important law case.

Harry Litaker is a well known photographer in town. A busy man, they say.

James Coan and Cecil Moose came to say "hello." James is a dentist and Cecil is the minister of a beautiful church in town. And, speaking of the ministry, Betty Jean Rodgers is a foreign missionary now.

Betty Jo Stallings was asked to play the piano. She has established her own school of music and has a full enrollment of pupils. Annie Pearl Shue has become a nun in the Catholic Church.

I walked around, thinking I had seen almost everyone, when Betty Henderson and Alice Blackwelder appeared. Betty has a nice little home in the suburbs of New York and Alice is one of the best nurses in town.

Mr. Ed Dennis is now the minister of music in a Chicago church. He is also the recreational leader.

Louise Severt and Lelia Haithcock are teaching at Winecoff.

Odis Souther is a prominent lawyer in New York, along with Kenneth Jenkins.

Hazel Phillips is a missionary and is now with her husband in China.

At last I decided that I had seen everyone; then who should I see in the corner but my old friends, Johnny Bollinger and Bruce Clanton. Johnny is the manager of the biggest gas company (capacity: 16 gas tanks) in New York. I could harly believe my ears but it's true—Bruce is the owner of a funeral parlor and I might add that he has the largest one in Kentucky.

Well, the night was passing and much to my sorrow we had to leave. I turned to tell the little fairy how much I had enjoyed myself, but as the time passed so did the fairy; so I turned and bade a fond farewell to my classmates of '49.
